We Need More JOBS, Not Political Bull!

It is good to see the American people speaking up about national elected leaders who find new ways to tax us, place Americans in more debt, limit our liberty, but do not present proposals on ways to work with private sector businesses to expand JOBS in America.

For years we heard the blame game between national political parties, but now its clear that our national woes are as a direct result of America's political parties not working for the well-being of America's economy and the American people.

Just as Americans are over taxed, it was taxes and regulations enacted by national elected leaders that caused businesses to move industries overseas to cut down on the cost of doing business in America. As a result tens-of-millions of jobs have been lost and the prolonged recession continues.

Instead of enacting positive legislation to restore jobs, our national leaders continue to watch the decline of America's industries, infrastructure, industrial arts programs, the trades and job skills, but still they have not presented incentives for private sector businesses to expand industries and jobs in the U.S.A.

I wish there was a way to make the positive changes we need happen overnight, but I see that rebuilding is not as easy as knocking down, so look at labels and support the businesses operating in the U.S.A.

I encourage you to contact your national and state elected officials to voice your concerns. For contact details check out the Elected Officials Link on the front page of AmericanWorkersRadio.com.
